End of Life Assistance (Scotland) Bill

Andrew Carter

I am not at all happy about the approval of the Assisted Suicide Bill and its implications for society in Scotland. My mother nursed my dying father under very difficult conditions until the last breath left his body as he lay dying from bowel cancer. Life is a gift from God and it is not given to us to terminate it no matter what the circumstances. There are ample palliative medicines now to cope with such circumstances.

Andrew Carter
25 April 2010