I do not agree a person should be able to request end of life assistance from a medical practitioner.

I believe human life is sacred, and that care and not killing is the way to go.

I think that introducing euthanasia as a possibility will put great strain on vulnerable people. They may be confronted with decisions they should not have to cope with such as whether they should “die early” so as not to be a burden on others, or even to release finances for loved ones etc.

Also, what about medical practitioners who do not want to act against their conscience in these matters?

Jennifer Hepburn
26 April 2010