Dear Sir,

Re: Maggie MacDowells MFS
End of Life Assistance (Scotland) Bill.

I am very concerned about this Bill and the effect on ill, elderly and vulnerable people and their relatives. It is noted both the Scottish and Westminster Parliaments were opposed to this in recent years, also the British Medical Association.

With good health care and palliative medicine and the excellent care given by Hospices, the above mentioned people can be cared for to die with dignity and feel loved and cared for.

In a personal note, my husband
He died in our local Hospice. Their care and concern for us all in the short period of time he was a patient there, was a great comfort to us. As a Christian I believe only God controls life and death and the timing and way of our departure from this life.

Yours Sincerely

Eunice A Ferguson
